Lovers of extravagant vintage this weekend will be in delight when they come to the European furniture market from the 60s and 70s at New Holland Island. Everyone can find something for himself or herself such as: tables, chairs, sofas, decorative home furnishings, and many other interesting things, straight from Europe.

This event, for the first time will be held in St. Petersburg. On the lawn of the island there will be on display massive leather sofas and Chesterfield chairs, more minimalist chairs, tables, dressers and desks, vintage furniture from the mid XX century from Holland and England. All the furniture from the project Mobeledom by Arkadi Zeltser was found at auction in London in small furniture stores and flea markets.

By the way, the price of the market is quite reasonable, and not much will be different from the prices for furniture from «IKEA», but this furniture is much harder to come by and much more unique! Come out and you will find something you will love!

When: from August 3rd to August 4th

Where: New Holland island, Admiralteysky canal emb., 2.
