The First Lego Museum in St. Petersburg has recently opened on Millionnaya Street! The museum has thousands of colorful details by Saint-Petersburg designers, who collected LEGO for a long time. The centerpiece of the exhibition is present-day St. Petersburg with railroads, train stations, shops and big houses. There can also be found the "Death Star" from "Star Wars" a model of a «Ferrari», all kinds of pirate ships, submarines, dinosaurs and hundreds of other equally attractive exhibits.

Upon closer examination of the many buildings you can even find a copy of the Hermitage Museum!

The museum does not cooperate with the "LEGO" company. LEGO enthusiasts from St. Petersburg made all the exhibits of the museum possible. The museum exhibitions are planned to be changed periodically.

The Lego museum is only open on Saturdays and Sundays.

Hours of operation:

Saturday and Sunday, 11:00 - 18:00

Cost: Adults - 200 rubles for children up to 14 years - 150 rubles

Location: Millionnaya Street, 10; 3rd floor
SP Guide's Most Popular:

- Letter of Invitation/Support for Russia